

Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation (with Russian Psychiatric Society)
(Russian MoH)

Russia

The Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation (Minzdrav) is a crucial government body responsible for public health policy, regulation, and the overall health system in Russia. Established in the early 1990s, the Ministry operates under the jurisdiction of the federal government and plays a significant role in regulating healthcare practices, medical services, and health-related sectors, including the food industry. Its mission encompasses promoting health, preventing diseases, and enhancing the quality of medical services across the nation.

<https://minzdrav.gov.ru/en>

Link to recommendations: https://cr.minzdrav.gov.ru/preview-cr/301_3

Table

Recommended treatments by Russian MoH according to their empirical support

Strong	Acceptance and commitment therapy ^{+, 1, 3, 4} , Cognitive-behavioural therapy ^{+, 1, 3, 4} , Mindfulness-based cognitive therapy ^{+, 1, 3, 4} , Psychodynamic therapy ^{+, 1, 3, 4}
Moderated	Interpersonal psychotherapy ⁺
Weak/Controversial	-
Insufficient	-
No evidence assessment	Group psychoeducation ³
First line	-